GEORGE MASON: THE MAN

When George Mason of Gunston Hall wrote the Virginia Declaration of Rights in 1776, he gave the United States the noble concept that the rights of the individual must be protected against the power of government. By placing in Virginia's first constitution a list of rights that could never be taken away from citizens, Mason sought to ensure a society in which government could not become all-powerful.

As a result of his influence, the Bill of Rights, which was based on Mason's Declaration of Rights, was added to the U.S. Constitution. The universal significance of this action made the American Revolution much more than a war for independence from Great Britain: it enshrined in our most important public document the principle that a government must always respect the rights of the people.

Mason, himself a slave owner, did not recognize that these rights extended to slaves. Nevertheless, his words were later used to demonstrate that slavery could not exist in a country that proclaimed its belief in human rights. In the United States, we have not always adhered to Mason's great ideas, but they remain the measure of the best in our national life.

HISTORY OF THE UNIVERSITY

George Mason University began as the Northern Virginia branch of the University of Virginia in 1957, offering courses in engineering and the liberal arts. Called University College, it opened in a renovated elementary school in Bailey's Crossroads with an enrollment of 17 students.

Eager to support this novice institution, the Town (now City) of Fairfax purchased 150 acres in 1958 and donated it to the University of Virginia in order for a permanent branch campus to be located in Northern Virginia. The following year, the University of Virginia Board of Visitors selected the name George Mason College. Construction of the campus's first four buildings (North, South, East, West), was completed in 1964. In September of that year, 356 students began their studies in the new classrooms.

In March 1966, the General Assembly authorized the expansion of George Mason College into a four-year, degree-granting institution and gave it the long-range mandate to expand into a major regional university. The first senior class received degrees in June 1968. Graduate programs began in September 1970 with the first master's degrees conferred in June 1971. The George Mason College Board of Control, supported by citizens of Alexandria, Falls Church, Arlington, and Fairfax counties acquired an additional 442 acres. By the end of 1970, the college's Fairfax Campus reached 571 acres; it is now 677 acres.

In 1972, the Board of Visitors of the University of Virginia recommended that the college separate from its parent institution. On April 7, 1972, the governor signed the General Assembly legislation that established George Mason University as an independent member of the commonwealth's system of colleges and universities.

In 1979, George Mason was given the authority to grant doctoral degrees and began offering programs at this level. In the same year, the university acquired George Mason University School of Law located at the Arlington Campus.

In 1984, the first Robinson Professors, a group of outstanding scholars committed to undergraduate teaching and interdisciplinary scholarship, joined the faculty as a result of a generous bequest from Clarence J. Robinson.

Drawing prominent scholars from all fields, George Mason's outstanding faculty also includes Pulitzer Prize winners, IEEE Centennial Medalists, and recipients of numerous grants and awards including Fulbrights, National Science Foundation, and National Endowment of the Arts, among others. Endowed chairs have also brought many artists and scholars to campus.

In 1985, George Mason University, in partnership with area businesses, developed an engineering program geared toward the emerging information technology field and started the School of Information Technology and Engineering. The School of Information Technology and Engineering (IT&E) is concerned primarily with study areas that involve integrating the information basis for modern engineering with the more conventional physical and materials science approach. The careful integration of these areas results in a unique academic experience for highly motivated students. Through IT&E, George Mason was the first in the country to offer a doctoral degree in information technology.

The establishment of the Institute of the Arts in 1990 solidified the university's commitment to make the arts a pervasive part of students' lives. The Center for the Arts and the arts complex, which includes an art gallery, art studio, a rehearsal space, and performing venues such as TheaterSpace, are all components of the institute. The Institute of the Arts strives to maintain a balance between presenting master works of the past and creating a vital atmosphere for the production of new work. The institute is dedicated to the support and encouragement of all artists, including those of culturally diverse backgrounds, from here and abroad.

In April 1996, the innovative George W. Johnson Center opened. The Johnson Center's eight acres of floor space houses a 25,000-volume book collection, media center, computer labs, bank, bookstore, convenience store and food services. By combining student life resources with educational support, George Mason has created the learning workspace of the future. The center fosters university-wide learning by integrating students' curricular and extracurricular activities and by strengthening relationships among the university communities.

Since 1972, the university's development has been marked by rapid growth and innovative planning. In 28 years, enrollment has risen from 4,166 to 23,408 in Fall 2000. George Mason has expanded its presence to serve the entire Northern Virginia region by employing the revolutionary concept of the "distributed" university. In collaboration with county and state governments, the university established a campus in Prince William County. A partnership with American Type Culture Collection, the world's foremost archive of living cultures, has led to academic programs focusing on bioinformatics and makes Prince William County a center for biomedical technology. The Prince William Campus opened its doors in September of 1997. The university is also expanding its presence in Arlington, home of the George Mason University School of Law. In Fall 1998, the first new building for the Arlington Campus was completed. This is the first of a three-phase expansion plan. Upon completion of all three phases, the campus will have space to accommodate an increase in programming ranging from business to international transactions.

George Mason University has achieved national distinction in many areas. Its reputation continues to grow as the university provides for an educational, cultural, and economic resource for the people of Northern Virginia, the Commonwealth of Virginia, and the nation.

George Mason University's growing reputation as an innovative educational leader is rooted in Virginia's strong education tradition. By emphasizing the needs of its region--high technology, public policy, and the fine and performing arts--George Mason has created a curriculum and mission to meet the needs of Northern Virginia's extraordinary cosmopolitan constituency.

School Mascot: Gunston

School Song: George Mason Alma Mater

Tune: "The Cornell Hymn" (or an adaptation thereof)

*Where the Pohick seeps in silence
From the primal Fairfax Clay,
There arises dear George Mason,
Costlier each day.*

*Acres torn from gentle farming,
Destined soon to urban strife,
Now are saved at handsome ransom
For the learned life.*

*Down from high Rivanna's courses
Bring a drop of morning dew:
Eight in winter, seven in summer
Starts her day anew.*

*Hear the sound of future splendor,
Gurgle, chirp, and rustle hushed.
Crackle hear of pages turning,
Learning ever rushed.*

*Years have passed. A generation's
Trickled down the Pohick stream.
Out from Gunston Cove we've paddled
Into global dream,*

*Patriots embarked in Freedom,
Every learning, praising thee;
Alma Mater, dear George Mason University.*

January, 1991*

VISION STATEMENT

In September 2000, President Alan Merten along with valuable input from people both inside and outside the university developed a vision statement that serves as an overriding guide under which the university's schools, colleges, and institutes will operate.

Titled "An Innovative University for the Information Age," is President Merten's vision for the university. "This statement represents what, in a sense, we as an institution of higher learning are and what we can become."

An Innovative University for the Information Society

George Mason will be the university needed by a region and world driven by new social, economic, and technological realities.

We are in the right place: The nation's capital region is the epicenter of the world's political web, its information and communications network, and its new economy.

We are ready: In an age that demands originality and imagination, George Mason is the region's most innovative university. George Mason will

- become a magnet for outstanding faculty who will devise new ways to approach problems, invent new ways to teach, and develop new knowledge for the benefit of the region and nation;
- attract inventive, industrious students of all ages and cultures and produce citizens who are intellectually and technologically literate-people who will lead by the force of their ideas;
- transform into knowledge and wisdom the vast amounts of information now accessible through new technologies;
- build strong alliances that bring the know-how of business and the community into the university and take the knowledge of the university into the workplace and the larger society;
- become a center of inquiry, knowledge, and professional expertise in fields with vital implications for human needs and opportunities in the future; and
- remain innovative, resourceful, and responsive, while drawing on the intellectual and cultural heritage of the classical university.

STATE COUNCIL OF HIGHER EDUCATION FOR VIRGINIA

The State Council of Higher Education for Virginia (SCHEV) is the Commonwealth's coordinating body for higher education. Established in 1956 by the General Assembly and the Governor, the Council's purpose is "to promote the development and operation of an educationally and economically sound, vigorous, progressive and coordinated system of higher education in Virginia." By statute, the Council makes policy recommendations to the Governor and General Assembly affecting Virginia's outstanding system of higher education in such areas as budget planning, enrollment projections, institutional technology needs, student financial aid, among others. The Council also implements a wide variety of higher education programs which benefit students, faculty, parents and taxpayers. SCHEV serves as a catalyst to promote greater access, quality, affordability and accountability throughout the system. SCHEV also helps policymakers, college administrators and other concerned leaders work cooperatively and constructively to advance educational excellence.

The Council of Higher Education consists of 11 members who are appointed by the Governor to four-year terms. The Executive Director of SCHEV, who is appointed by the Council, manages the day-to-day operations of the state agency and its 44-member professional staff. Currently, SCHEV has a $3.4 million budget to conduct its policy analyses and program operations, and administers $53.5 million in grants appropriations for Virginia higher education.

* Due to flexible scheduling, beginning in Fall 1995, some end-of-summer enrollments were reported in the fall census. This reporting method created high enrollments for Fall 1995 and Fall 1996. Per directions from SCHEV, these enrollments are now being counted in the summer. Therefore, the data for Fall 1997 and 1998 appear to show a drop from Fall 1996, when this is simply a result of a change in reporting methods. Annual data are not affected.

UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES

George Mason University Libraries is comprised of the Charles Rogers Fenwick Library and the George W. Johnson Center Library on the Fairfax Campus and the Arlington Campus and Prince William Campus libraries. The School of Law Library, which is administered separately, is located on the Arlington Campus. All of the libraries offer support for student, faculty, and staff teaching, learning, research, and service and outreach activities. . In addition, the Libraries' resources and services are accessible on-site to the University's surrounding communities and the general public. Expanded academic support services of the University libraries also include:

- University Copyright Assistance Office: provides guidance and assistance on copyright and fair use issues. Located in Johnson Center Rooms 120 and 121, office staff advise the university community in areas such as classroom teaching and technology, online courses, distance education, university publications, university web sites, networked library collections and services, electronic course reserves, and electronic database licensing.
- University Dissertations and Theses Service: in cooperation and coordination with the Office of the Provost and the Graduate Council , assistance is provided to the University's graduate programs through centralized management of the process for student submission of theses and dissertations.
- Statistical Support Services: special expertise is available for students and faculty who need assistance with statistical software packages (quantitative and qualitative research),

The Libraries' information technology assisted and enhanced services and programs include:

- An online library management system – Voyager — employed to conduct many aspects of library operations (acquisition of materials, cataloging, circulation, course reserves, management reporting), as well as provide an online public access catalog (OPAC) which reflects the holdings of all George Mason University libraries.
- The Libraries' Web site provides access to a variety of networked resources and services (over 300 licensed scholarly digital databases many of which are full-text; links to electronic journals; patron-initiated circulation; online reference assistance; and web-based communication with library staff for document delivery requests; requests for acquisition of specific resources; placement of materials on reserve for designated courses; and other services.
- A Web-based Electronic Reserves module allowing students to access materials on course reserve remotely.
- Microform to digital format output technology, and statistical software packages and Geographic Information System (GIS) software.
- Over 200 networked computer workstations, connected to laser printers, available for student and faculty use in designated "public" areas in all of the libraries.
- In addition, the University community benefits from ready access to the ALADIN system – the Washington Research Libraries Consortium (WRLC) online union catalog of academic library holdings and other resources and services in the national capital metropolitan region.

Complementing our commitment to information technology, the Libraries' Liaison Librarian program matches subject specialist librarians with academic units to provide strong support for a number of cooperative and collaborative programs. The Libraries provide an inter-campus delivery service for students and faculty requesting materials held at any one of the other George Mason libraries. Materials not held within the University Libraries system may be obtained by direct patron initiated borrowing from WRLC institution libraries, by interlibrary loan, or through commercial document delivery services where warranted.

The University Libraries is staffed by a dedicated and service-oriented team consisting of: 102 full-time professional and support personnel, 11 graduate research assistants, and approximately 100 part-time student assistants and wage employees. Approximately 40 percent of the full-time staff is comprised of administrative and professional faculty (primarily librarians) with accredited graduate-level degrees in library/information sciences, and many possessing advanced academic discipline-based degrees as well.

Through membership and active participation in local, regional and national consortia the George Mason University Libraries are able to better respond and meet the needs of the University's growing and diverse academic and research programs. Current inter-institutional affiliations include: VIVA – The Virtual Library of Virginia Program (a Commonwealth of Virginia funded electronic resources program for public higher education institutions), Washington Research Library Consortium (whose membership, besides George Mason, includes American, Catholic, District of Columbia, Gallaudet, George Washington, and Marymount universities), Association of Southeastern Research Libraries (includes over 30 university libraries in the ten-state region), Center for Research Libraries (the Chicago, IL based "research library" for research libraries whose multi-million volume holdings are comprised of specialized and uniquely held materials in North America), and the international Online Computer Library Center (OCLC) whose extensive computerized system and network facilitate national and international library resource sharing activities.

FENWICK LIBRARY

Fenwick Library is the main research library of the University. Fenwick holds most of the Libraries' book collections, as well as current and bound journals, microforms, special collections and archival materials, government documents, and maps. Fenwick also offers access to a large number of electronic resources: networked and stand-alone CD-ROMs; the Libraries' online catalog; bibliographic and full text databases; electronic journals; and Internet/Web accessible resources. Librarians provide reference service during regularly scheduled hours in person, through the telephone, and by e-mail; they also teach instruction classes to students in specific programs and departments on information search strategies and sources, and offer individual appointments for in-depth research consultation. Through the library liaison program, librarians work with academic departments to develop local collections and electronic resources. The overarching goal of these activities is to assist students at all levels—undergraduate and graduate—as they become more sophisticated library and information technology users throughout their careers at the university, as well as facilitate faculty endeavors relating to teaching, learning, and research.

Also in Fenwick is the Special Collections and Archives Department. Special Collections and Archives collects, organizes, and preserves books, manuscripts, photographic images, and other items of historical or special interest to the university community; scans and digitizes some especially noteworthy materials for research use (available on the University Libraries web site); and provides "finding aids" for identification and use of special and archival materials. The George Mason University "Authors" collection is also housed in this department. In addition, the department in cooperation and coordination with the Office of the provost and the Graduate Council provides assistance to the University's graduate programs through centralized management of the process for student submission of theses and dissertations.

Another significant resource of primary research materials held in Fenwick Library is the Government Documents and Maps collection. With both federal and Virginia state documents included, this collection contains items from the administrative, legislative, and judicial branches of government, and constitutes an invaluable source of research materials for students and faculty in a variety of academic disciplines. The Maps collection includes maps produced by the U.S. Geological Survey, as well as commercially published maps and atlases. As a selective depository library, Fenwick receives approximately 50% of the material available through the Federal Depository Library Program, which makes information available to citizens through designated libraries from the world's largest publisher—the U.S. Government. Special expertise is available to assist students and faculty in using and interpreting both print and electronic government information. In addition, special expertise is available for students and faculty who need assistance with statistical software packages and Geographic Information System(GIS) software.

Additional services available at Fenwick Library include the Periodicals and Microforms collections, Circulation, Document Acquisition and Delivery (Interlibrary Loan), and Resources and Collection Management Services departments. The Office of the University Librarian is also located in Fenwick.

JOHNSON CENTER LIBRARY

The Johnson Center Library is part of the George W. Johnson Center, an integrated learning environment at George Mason University. The primary service areas of the Johnson Center Library have been conceived as a prototype of an electronic "gateway" library that supports information access and research activities through the Libraries' information technology systems and the Internet/World Wide Web. Electronic access to scholarly information is supported by a print reference collection, media collections, and a growing circulating book collection comprised of core texts and readings reflecting the interdisciplinary and multicultural emphases in the university's undergraduate curriculum. The Johnson Center Library especially supports interdisciplinary programs such as New Century College through its collections and outreach programs. The library also holds designated discipline-based circulating collections in the areas of music and education.

The Johnson Center Library emphasizes teaching the novice researcher to use library and information resources more confidently in the Johnson Center Library itself, as well as in other libraries and through other channels, whether an area public library, a corporate setting, or from a desktop computer at home. The teaching of the Johnson Center Library provides a foundation for library users in critical thinking skills as they navigate more complex layers of information throughout their academic careers. The teaching/learning mission of the Johnson Center Library is also an indispensable part of the overall teaching/learning mission of the Johnson Center itself.

The Johnson Center Library also serves as the center for Media collections and services for the University library system. The Media collection includes materials in a variety of formats – videotapes, CD's, audiotapes, laserdiscs, and interactive videodiscs. The video collection of videocassettes and laserdiscs includes documentaries and educational titles from a wide range of disciplines as well as an extensive collection of feature films. The audio collection of compact discs and L.P. records includes a large classical and jazz music selection, as well as popular music titles. The Media collection also includes audiocassettes, primarily unabridged “books on tape” editions of classic literature. The multi-media CD-ROM collection contains titles in the Arts, Humanities, and Sciences. Also available is “the Video Encyclopedia of the 20th Century,” a unique collection of 40+ videodiscs which can be used to copy historic video clips to VHS tape for use in class projects, multimedia production, and other activities. All of these materials are available for viewing and/or listening in the library; some are available for external circulation to the University’s students, faculty, and staff.

The Johnson Center Library also provides course reserve materials for students on the Fairfax Campus. The Libraries-wide electronic reserves service is also managed at this library. A collection of periodicals (foreign newspapers and general interest magazines and journals) and a leisure reading collection round out the Johnson Center Library’s collections and services.

Other notable resources of the Johnson Center Library include an electronic state-of-the-art group instruction room that can accommodate up to 36 persons, and an adaptive technology assistance room for use by persons with physical disabilities.

ARLINGTON CAMPUS LIBRARY

The Arlington Campus Library, located on the Ground Floor of the “original building,” is a full-service research facility supporting the teaching and research needs of the non-law Mason students, faculty, and staff on this campus. The library’s collection emphasizes international relations and commercial transactions as well as nonprofit management, education, business, finance, trade, and related policy issues. The library holds a core reference collection and is a depository for European Union Documents. Further, the library houses approximately 22,000 pre-1980 bound journal volumes in all disciplines (transferred from Fenwick Library due to space conservation reasons in 1999).

Library staff provide assistance and instruction for faculty, staff, and students in identifying and using various resources. A critical component of the Arlington Campus Library services is access to electronic resources and networked services, as well as inter-campus document delivery requests.

Through contractual arrangement, the Arlington Campus Library also supports a “reserve” collection and provides course reserve services for Virginia Commonwealth University’s graduate program in social work.

PRINCE WILLIAM CAMPUS LIBRARY

Prince William Campus Library (PWL) supports the programs and courses offered at the Prince William Campus. Programs include Administration of Justice; Biotechnology; Business; Computer Science; Education; Nursing; and Health, Fitness and Recreation Resources. PWL is located in on the first floor of Academic Building I and offers a full complement of services including access to networked electronic resources and services; orientation to the collection of the libraries’ system; course reserves; circulation and reference services; multimedia materials; interCampus and interlibrary loan; instruction in the use of research tools; and assistance with developing strategies for conducting self-guided research. Integrating print, video and electronic resources to meet the research needs of PWL patrons, the emphasis is on instruction in and assistance with the use of electronic resources and computing applications. Within Prince William County, PWL is fostering partnerships for the provision of information resources for PWL patrons, as well as offering information services to the rapidly expanding corporate and technology presence.

Through contractual arrangement, the PWL also provides library support and services to the research personnel of the American Type Culture Collection — George Mason’s corporate partner at Prince William campus.

SCHOOL OF LAW LIBRARY

The George Mason School of Law Library combines a growing collection with a high level of information technology support to ensure that students and faculty have optimal access to all available resources for serious scholarly study and research.

Located on three floors of the Law School building on the Arlington Campus, the library offers 340 study carrels and table seats. Separate seminar and computer rooms within the library allow for group study/discussion and computer activities. The library's collection consists of more than 391,771 volumes and volume equivalents, featuring American legal court reports, statutes, encyclopedias, digests, and indices. The library also holds more than 5,475 law reviews and law-related journals and other serials. The library's collections are particularly strong in law and economics, business, banking, economic history and theory, ethics, philosophy, tax, international law, and patent law. As a Federal Government Depository Program participant, the library also regularly receives administrative decisions, executive agency reports, and other related government documents.

Information technology is the key to the management and effective use of the resources and services of the Law Library. The Law Library shares and uses all of the library and information technology resources of George Mason University Libraries (mentioned above), as well as the consortia resource sharing arrangements and networked digital resources (e.g., VIVA, WRLC) as part of the University library system. In addition, there are two major, full-text computer-assisted legal research systems only available at the Law Library: LEXIS and WESTLAW. They are both available to the law students and faculty of George Mason University for educational and research purposes. Although these two legal research systems differ, each includes the full text of judicial opinions and rulings, statutory materials, administrative regulations and decisions, and other legal and law-related resource materials.

The School of Law Library is staffed by 16 full-time employees and additional part-time personnel.

NON-DEGREE-SEEKING:

- Non-degree seeking students are classified only as undergraduate, graduate, or law, based on the level of the coursework being pursued.

CLASSIFICATION OF INSTRUCTIONAL PROGRAMS (CIP) CODE

Six-digit code that classifies instructional programs. The 1990 revision is the version currently in use.

CONTRACT COURSE

A course offered by contractual arrangement that may be paid for as a unit rather than via tuition charges to individual students.

CREDIT HOUR

A unit of measure of course work, independent study, or a related activity, that can be applied toward meeting the requirements of a degree, certificate, or other formal award.

DEGREE-SEEKING STUDENT

A student enrolled in courses for credit who is recognized by the institution as seeking a degree or formal award.

ENROLLED/ENROLLEES

Students registered for more than zero credit hours on the census date for the reporting term. New enrollees approved for admission to multiple programs are counted only once, under the program designated as their primary program of study.

FIRST-TIME FRESHMAN

- Admissions: An applicant who has never attended any postsecondary institution since graduation from high school, or whose only postsecondary enrollment was in the summer term immediately prior to a fall applied-for term.
- Student enrollment: New students who qualify as first-time freshman admissions, including those with sufficient Advanced Placement credit to be granted sophomore class standing.

EXTENDED STUDIES

The enrollment program that serves non-degree-seeking students.

TERMS AND DEFINITIONS

FULL-TIME EQUIVALENT (FTE) STUDENT

A statistic derived from the student-credit hour productivity of the institution. In non-summer terms, the number of FTE students is obtained by dividing the total number of undergraduate, first professional (law), and graduate credit hours per term by 15, 15, and 12 respectively. The number of FTE students in summer, and annualized regular session (fall and spring semesters) is obtained by dividing the total number of undergraduate, first professional, and graduate credit hours per session by 30, 30, and 24 respectively. This definition should be distinguished from the definition of a full-time student.

FULL-TIME STUDENT

An undergraduate student enrolled for 12 or more credit hours in a term, a graduate student enrolled for 9 or more credit hours in a term, or a law student classified as a day student in a term.

GRADUATE STUDENT

A student enrolled in a master's, doctoral, or post-baccalaureate certificate program, not including law students. A non-degree-seeking student enrolled in graduate-level classes is also considered a graduate student.

GUEST MATRICULANT

A student taking course work at George Mason and applying the credit toward a degree at another institution.

HEADCOUNT STUDENT

The number of students enrolled for more than zero credit hours in courses offered for degree or certificate credit, including students who are not admitted to a degree program (extended studies). When student headcount is reported by academic division/department, the headcount is attributed to the department that administers the student's primary program of study.

IN-STATE STUDENT

A student whose official domicile is in the commonwealth of Virginia.

LOWER DIVISION--BACCALAUREATE

- Courses: courses that are part of a baccalaureate program, generally taken by freshmen and sophomores, with course numbers in the range 100-299.
- Students: students classified as freshmen or sophomores (those with fewer than 60 earned credit hours).

NEW STUDENT

A student whose enrollment in the term is the consequence of an application for admission for the term.

NON-DEGREE-SEEKING GRADUATE STUDENT

A student enrolled in graduate-level courses for credit who is not recognized as accepted into a degree or certificate program and who cannot be classified by student level.

NON-DEGREE-SEEKING STUDENT

A student enrolled in courses for credit who is not recognized as seeking a degree or certificate.

NON-DEGREE-SEEKING UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT

A student enrolled in undergraduate-level courses for credit who is not recognized as seeking a degree or certificate and who cannot be classified by student level.

NON-RESIDENT ALIEN

A person who is not a citizen or national of the United States and who is in this country on a visa or temporary basis and does not have the right to remain indefinitely. (Source: IPEDS)

TERMS AND DEFINITIONS

RACE/ETHNICITY

Categories used to describe groups to which individuals belong or with which they identify. The categories do not denote scientific definitions of anthropological origins. A person may be counted in only one group. In official reporting only U.S. citizens and permanent residents (resident aliens) are grouped by race/ethnicity. The groups used to categorize all students are:

- African American/Black, Non-Hispanic
- American Indian or Alaskan Native
- Asian or Pacific Islander
- Hispanic
- White, Non-Hispanic
- Non-Resident Alien

RE-ADMITTED STUDENT

A student returning to the institution after an unofficial absence to resume a program of study, who has not attended another postsecondary institution during the absence, and whose re-enrollment requires formal approval. Formal approval to re-enroll is normally required after an unofficial absence of two or more non-summer terms, or after being formally dismissed. In most reporting, re-admitted students are counted among returning/continuing students. Students who attend another post-secondary institution during an unofficial absence are required to submit a complete application for admission, and are counted among new students.

RETURNING/CONTINUING STUDENT

A student whose eligibility to enroll in the term does not require the submission of a formal application for admission.

TRANSFER STUDENT

A student entering the institution for the first time or re-entering to resume a prior level, and known to have previously attended a postsecondary institution at the same level. A student who was dual-enrolled at a college or university while still enrolled in high school is counted as a first-time freshman, not as a transfer student.

UNCLASSIFIED STUDENT

A student whose enrollment cannot be classified by student level.
